DISCUSSION

A Site Inspection Prioritization (SIP) was conducted for the Olin - Wallisville Road Site (the 'site') in Houston, Texas. The site is the former location of a pesticide formulation facility. Investigations at the site in 1980 led to a removal of 3 to 4 feet of soil by Olin. According to the SIP, the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) is actively monitoring the site and has sampled at the site as recently as June 1995.

Using the PREScore model, the site received a score below the 28.5 cutoff value necessary for sites to be considered for Superfund's National Priorities List. Due to the low site score and the active involvement of the TNRCC, no further remedial action is planned for this site under CERCLA. This site has been referred to the State for action, if necessary, under their applicable regulations.
